PART II- SHARED RESPONSIBILITIES FOR HIGH STUDENT ACADEMIC ACHIEVEMENT

To ensure effective involvement of parents and to support a partnership among the school involved, parents, and the community, to improve student academic achievement, each school and district under this part –

- a. Assistance will be provided to the parents of children served by the school or district, as appropriate, in understanding such topics as the state's academic content standards and state student academic achievement standards. State and district assessments, the requirements of this part, and how to monitor a child's progress and work with educators to improve the achievement of their children.

The Farrell Upper Middle School will provide parents information on the PSSA (Pennsylvania System of School Assessment) annually at a parent information meeting.

Farrell Upper Middle School students are regularly tested by the state to find out if they're on track learning the important skills they need to be successful while in our schools and after graduation. Students are tested on basic academic skills as well as more advanced skills.

Common statewide tests are important because they help make sure all students are getting a quality education regardless of where they live.

OSPI develops or selects and administers all state assessments and reports achievement data for individual students, schools, districts and the overall state. This information helps districts and schools refine instructional practices and focus curriculum. It also gives parents information about how well their child is doing and where additional help may be needed.

Parents will be given information on Acadience, Edmentum, and benchmark assessments.

b. Materials and training will be provided to help parents work with their children to improve their children's achievement, such as literacy training and using technology, as appropriate, to foster parental involvement.

c. Shall educate teachers, pupil services personnel, principals, and other staff, with the assistance of parents, will be educated in the value and utility of contributions of parents, and in how to reach out to, communicate with, and work with parents as equal partners, implement and coordinate parent programs, and build ties between parents and the school.

The term "parent and family engagement" is used broadly. It includes several different forms of participation in education and with the schools. Parents can support their children's schooling by attending school functions and responding to school obligations (parent-teacher conferences, for example). They can become more involved in helping their children improve their schoolwork--providing encouragement, arranging for appropriate study time and space, modeling desired behavior (such as reading for pleasure), monitoring homework, and actively tutoring their children at home.

Outside the home, parents can serve as advocates for the school. They can volunteer to help out with school activities or work in the classroom. They can take an active role in the governance and decision making necessary for planning, developing, and providing an education for the community's children.

Research has established that the most successful parent participation efforts are those which offer parents a variety of roles in the context of a well-organized and long-lasting program. Parents will need to be able to choose from a range of activities, which accommodate different schedules, preferences, and capabilities. As part of the planning process, teachers and administrators will need to assess their own readiness for involving parents and determine how they wish to engage and utilize them.

Other guidelines include:

- Communicating to parents that their involvement and support makes a great deal of difference in their children's school performance, and that they need not be highly educated or have large amounts of free time for their involvement to be beneficial. The Farrell Area Elementary School will make this point repeatedly.

- Encouraging parent involvement from the time children first enter school in kindergarten (or preschool, if they attend).
 - Teach parents that activities such as modeling reading behavior and reading to their children increase children's interest in learning.
 - Developing parent involvement programs that include a focus on parent involvement in instruction--conducting learning activities with children in the home, assisting with homework, and monitoring and encouraging the learning activities of older students.
 - Providing orientation and training for parents, but remember that intensive, long-lasting training is neither necessary nor feasible.
 - Making a special effort to engage the involvement of parents of disadvantaged students, who stand to benefit greatly.
 - Continuing to emphasize that parents are partners of the school and that their involvement is needed and valued.
- d. Shall to the extent feasible and appropriate, coordinate and integrate parent involvement programs and activities with Head Start, Reading First, Early Reading First, Even Start, the Home Instruction Programs for Preschool Youngsters, the Parents as Teachers Program, and public preschool and other programs, and conduct other activities, such as parent resource centers, that encourage and support parents in more fully participating in the education of their children.
- e. Shall ensure that information related to school and parent programs, meetings, and other activities is sent to the parents of participating children in a format and, to the extent practicable, in a language parents can understand.
- f. Shall provide such other reasonable support for parental involvement activities under this part as parents may request.
- g. May involve parents in the development of training for teachers, principals, and other educators to improve the effectiveness of such training.
- h. May provide necessary literacy training from funds received under this part if the district has exhausted all other reasonably available sources of funding for such training.
- i. May pay reasonable and necessary expenses associated with local parental involvement activities, including transportation and child care costs, to enable parents to participate in school-related meetings and training sessions.
- j. May train parents to enhance the involvement of other parents. The Farrell Area School District will have a core group of grade level parents who will be trained on policies, school wide discipline programs, and procedures. This group of grade level parents will in turn train a larger group of classroom parents.
- k. May arrange school meetings at a variety of times, or conduct in-home conferences between teachers or other educators, who work directly with participating children, with parents who are unable to attend such conferences at school, in order to maximize parental involvement and participation.
- l. May adopt and implement model approaches to improving parental involvement.
- m. May establish a district parent advisory council to provide advice on all matters related to parental involvement in programs supported under this section.
- n. May develop appropriate roles for community-based organizations and businesses in parent involvement activities.

PART III-ACCESSIBILITY REQUIREMENTS

In carrying out the parental involvement requirements districts and schools, to the extent practicable, shall provide full opportunities for the participation of parents with children with limited English proficiency, parents with children with disabilities, and parents of migratory children, including providing information and school reports in a format and, to the extent practicable, in a language such parents can understand.

PART IV-ADOPTION

This Farrell Upper Middle School Involvement Policy/Procedures have been developed/revised jointly with, and agreed upon with, parents of children participating in Title I program, as evidenced by meeting minutes.

Farrell Upper Middle School teachers and staff are committed to providing a quality educational program that will challenge all children to reach their potential. We believe when school and parents work together children succeed in school and throughout life. Neither home nor school can do the job alone. Parents play an extremely important role as the children's first teachers. Their support for their children and for the school is critical to their children's success at every step along the way.

To ensure that basic skills and knowledge are taught, we will hold educators accountable for effective teaching, hold students accountable for learning, and encourage parental involvement in their children's education. We will continually assess student growth in order to provide timely interventions and evaluate our instruction. Additionally, Farrell Upper Middle School teachers and staff will work collaboratively with parents and our community in the development, evaluation, and refinement of our Title I program.

The Farrell Area Upper Middle School is committed to the belief that all children can learn and acknowledges that parents share the school's commitment to the educational success of their children.

The Farrell Upper Middle School recognizes that a child's education is a responsibility shared by the school and family and agrees that to effectively educate all students, the school and parents must work together as partners. It is the practice of the Farrell Area Elementary School to welcome all parents to partner with us in bringing the best educational experience to the children.

At the Farrell Upper Middle School we define parental involvement as an ongoing process that promotes clear two-way communication between home and school. We achieve home school communication through the following:

- Phone Calls
- Emails
- Parent-Student-Teacher Compact
- Surveys
- Homework
- Evening workshops/events to share strategies and resources
- Interim Reports and Report Cards
- Meet the Teachers Night
- Open House
- Parent Support Network
- Parent Teacher Conferences
- Web Site
- PowerSchool
- Parent Square

To promote parental leadership, we encourage parents to join the Parent Support Network. The Parent Support Network meets with the Title I staff to plan, review, and help improve Title I services as well as update the compact, policies, and assist in planning evening workshops or events. At the annual Title I Meeting, parents learn of the school's participation in Title I and the rights of parents to be involved in Title I programs. At the various events, the Title I staff provides strategies for parents to help their children. The Parent Support Network members also have opportunities to attend parent workshops and conferences as a representative of the school.

Title I teachers monitor students' progress utilizing DIBELS (Dynamic Indicators of Basic Early Literacy Skills), AIMS, and CDT's (classroom diagnostic test). Additional assessments are conducted on an as needed basis. Title I teachers assist children in a combination of in-class and pull-out instruction.

Parent involvement is an integral part of the Title I Program in the Farrell Upper Middle School.
